Selling the White-Label Bookkeeping Tool

How to win an accounting firm: who to call, what to show, and how to close

ESource AI Group

Who we sell to

Great fit

Bookkeeping and small CPA firms with about 5 to 100 monthly clients, who want their own brand and care about client privacy.

Good signs

Clients on QuickBooks, Xero, Wave, or Zoho; frustration with price increases; lots of time chasing clients about transactions.

Not a fit yet

Firms that need live bank feeds, built-in payroll, a client login portal, or a mobile app.

Who decides

The firm owner. Bring the bookkeeper who does month-end into the demo.

Why firms buy: three reasons

Their brand

The firm's name and logo on screen, and "Prepared by" the firm on every client report.

Data stays home

Client bank statements never leave the firm's computers. Books and backups are locked to the firm.

Lower cost per client

About $17 a book at 10 clients, compared with $26.60 on QuickBooks Simple Start (ProAdvisor) or $27 on Xero Early.

Three more reasons: help, reminders and AI

Help you can talk to

A help assistant on every screen. Staff ask out loud or type, and get step-by-step answers. Fewer support calls for the firm.

Reminders

Clients get a monthly reminder on their own phone, a text from the bookkeeper's number, or an email from the firm. No software name or app involved.

✦ AI busywork

Suggests categories, drafts client questions and reads clients' answers. A person always accepts.

Discovery: questions that find the pain

1. Today's tools "Which software are your clients on, and who pays for it?"
2. Cost "How did this year's price increases hit you and your clients?"
3. Brand "Whose name do your clients see when they get their reports?"
4. Time "How many hours a month go to chasing clients about transactions?"

The 15-minute demo

Their brand

Open the firm-branded screen with their logo.

Upload

Drop in a bank statement. Show it ties to the bank.

Ask Client

Show grouped questions, then ✦ Suggest categories.

Reports

Health colors, P&L, and the Excel "Prepared by" line.

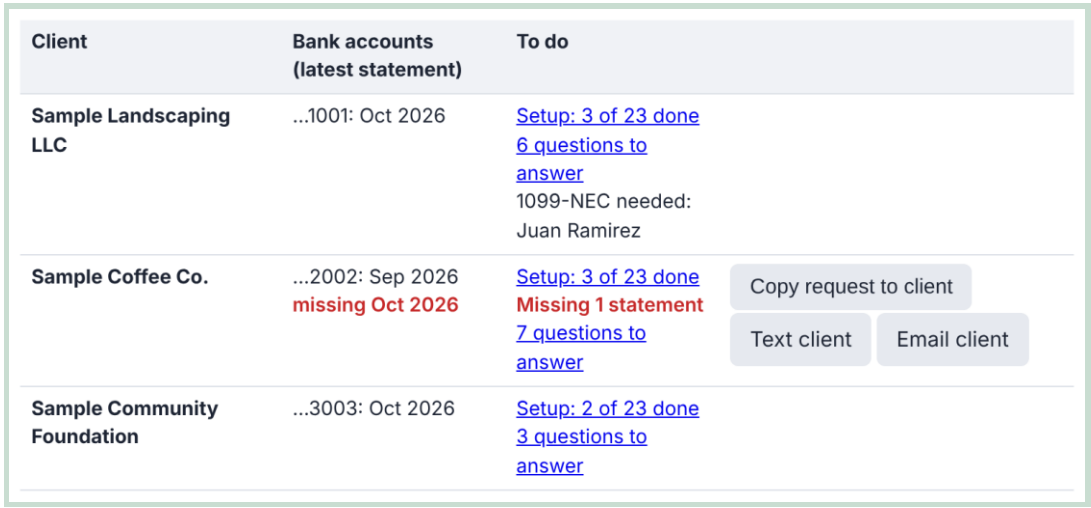

Reminders & help

Click Text client for Sample Coffee Co. Then ask the assistant a question out loud.

Use the demo profile with sample data. Never use a real client's statements in a demo.

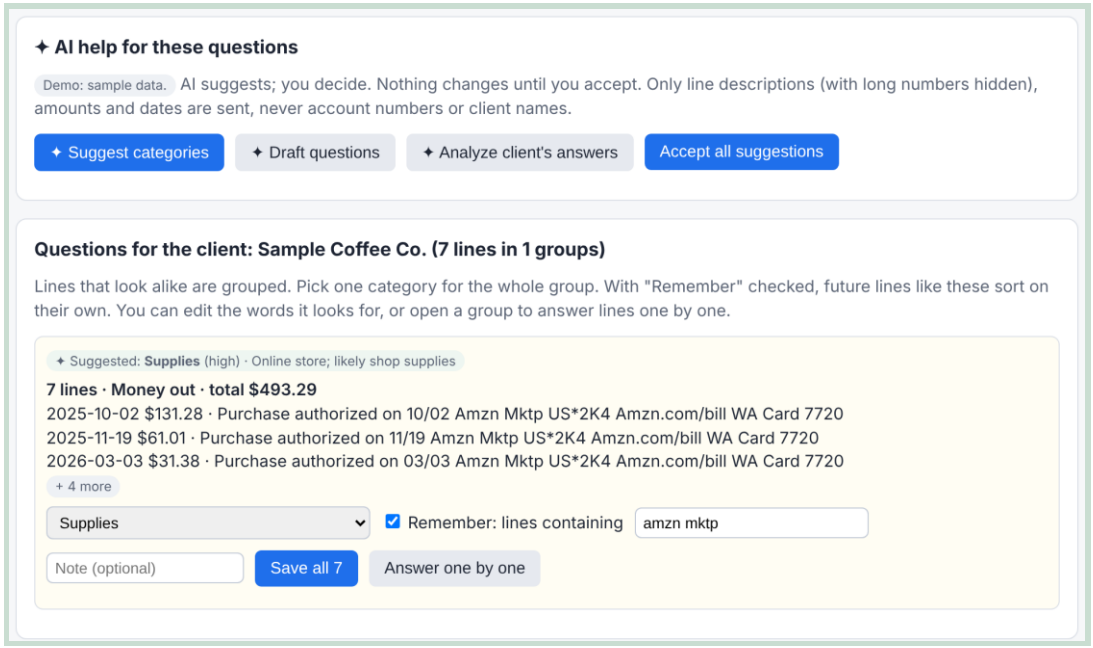

Demo moment: reminders

- Open the Status tab in the demo
- Point to Sample Coffee Co.: missing Oct 2026 in red
- Click Text client: the message opens, ready to send from your own phone
- Ask: "How do you chase statements today?"
- Then open Setup to show the calendar reminder

Demo moment: ✦ AI on Ask Client

- Open Sample Coffee Co., then Ask Client
- Click ✦ Suggest categories and read the reason
- Click ✦ Draft questions to show the client note
- Point out: nothing changes until a person accepts

Talking about price

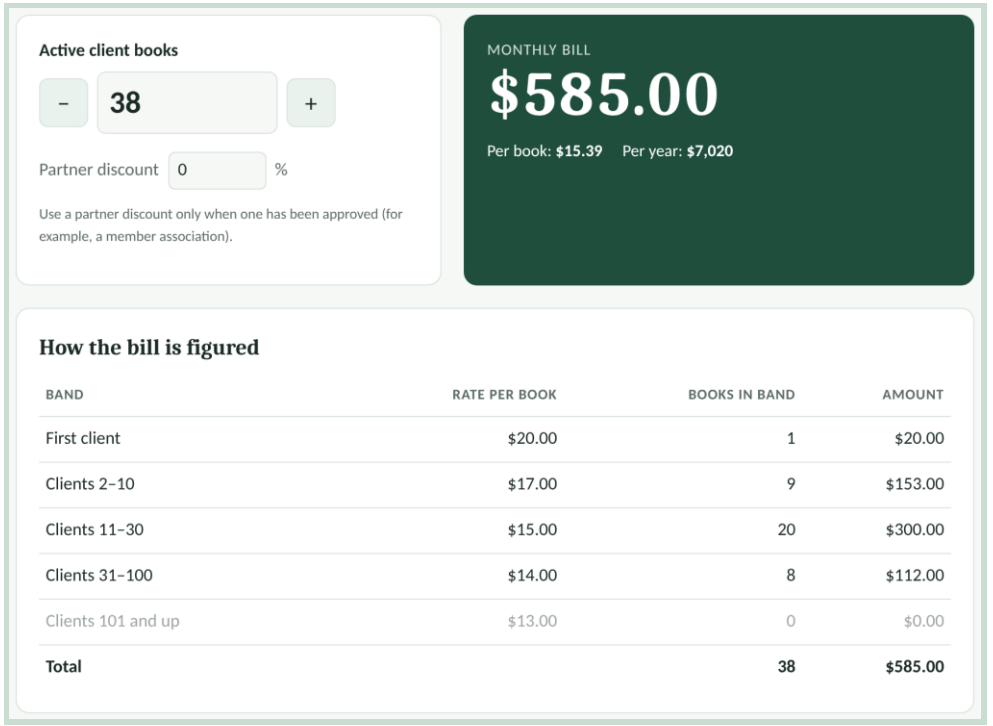

- Price is per active client book; staff seats are unlimited
- Each band's rate applies only to the books in that band
- $20 first client, $17 for clients 2-10, $15 for 11-30, $14 for 31-100, $13 for 101+
- Help assistant included: 10 minutes per client book each month
- Extra help minutes: 60 for $15, and they carry over

$173

Monthly bill for a firm with 10 client books, with 100 help minutes included. QuickBooks Simple Start at the ProAdvisor price: $266. Xero Early: $270.

Quote any firm with the price calculator

- Open app.esourcebookkeeper.com/calculator and type the firm's client books
- Each rate applies only to the books in its band
- 38 books: $20 + 9 × $17 + 20 × $15 + 8 × $14 = $585
- If a client leaves, the bill is figured again from the new count
- Click Copy quote and paste it into your email

Know your competitors

QuickBooks Online

They win on feeds, payroll, and familiarity. We win on brand, privacy, and price after their August 2026 increase.

Xero

They win on feeds and the $4 Ledger. We win on brand and no 20-invoice or 5-bill cap.

Zoho Books

They win with a free plan and $15 yearly. We win on per-firm pricing, unlimited staff, and brand.

Wave

Free is popular, but since June 2026 accountant access needs Pro at $19. We're $17 or less a book.

Handling objections

Bank feeds?

Monthly downloads take minutes, and every month is proven to tie to the bank.

"Clients know QBO"

Clients get Excel reports with your name. They don't need to learn software.

Payroll?

Keep your payroll provider. Its payments flow into the books from the bank.

Is our data safe?

It never leaves your computers, and it's locked to your firm. You control who signs in.

"You're new"

Start with a pilot of a few clients. Keep your current system until you're sure.

If ESource ends?

The agreement guarantees you a way to unlock and export all your books.

The owner's security story

- Only people the owner adds can sign in, each with their own email
- Remove someone the day they leave; their computer locks the books
- A lost laptop's books stay unreadable
- Backups are locked to the firm
- ESource sees only counts, never client names or bank data

Your clients stay yours

An employee who leaves can't take your client books with them, even on their own laptop.

Closing with a pilot

1. Propose a pilot 3 to 5 clients for 60 days, alongside their current system.
2. Set success measures Hours saved at month-end, fewer client questions, reports clients like.
3. Sign and activate License agreement signed, then ESource sets up their branded site.
4. Grow Move the rest of their clients over; billing follows the client count.
